

THE CROCODILE PRIZE

Ol sitori bilong yumi hia

Supported by the Post-Courier & PNG Attitude

A literary competition for Papua New Guinean writers

THE CROCODILE PRIZE was initiated to provide an opportunity for Papua New Guinean writers to publish their work, and for Papua New Guinean readers to have access to these works. Eligible contributions must be written by citizens of Papua New Guinea.

The contest has three categories: for short stories, poetry and journalism.

SHORT STORIES

Not more than 1,000 words on a theme of interest to a general readership

POETRY

Not more than 300 words on a theme of interest to a general readership

JOURNALISM

Not more than 500 words on a factual theme of interest to a general readership

PRIZE

There will be a prize of K1,000 to the author of the winning entry in each category.

DEADLINE

Entries must be submitted by Thursday 30 June 2011. The winners will be announced on PNG Independence Day, Friday 16 September 2011.

PUBLICATION

The PNG Post-Courier will publish a number of the best entries. It is planned to publish and distribute an anthology representing the body of work submitted.
